Nathan and the Secret Project

Knowing our neighbours

Mystery
Look for the genre features noted below as you read this book. Use the features to help you understand the text.

Tram's Secret Project
An hour later, they settled into their hiding place, off the hiking trail behind Dr. Trams' house. Suddenly, the door opened. Something is about to happen, Nathan thought, picking up his binoculars.

Writing in Response to Reading
Describe How a Character Changes
How does Nathan change? How is Nathan still the same? Write a multi-paragraph text describing how Nathan changes. Use an organizer like the one below to help you plan your writing.

Beginning of the Story      End of the Story

RRL: 26

Ring of Remembrance

Traditional tales

Myth
Look for the genre features noted below as you read this book. Use the features to help you understand the text.

Change the Story
Along of Remembrance ends with Bharat finding out who his father is. You haven't learned Bharat goes to the city to return the ring to King Dhanraj. But what if Bharat never found the ring? How would the story have ended differently?

Original Story      Original Ending

My Story Solution      My Ending

Writing in Response to Reading
Analyze Point of View
Who tells the story? How does the point of view shape the story? What do you know because Justice tells the story? What don't you know because Justice tells the story? Write an organizer like the one below to help you plan your writing.

Who tells the story?
What do you know?
What don't you know?

RRL: 28

K9: To Serve and Protect

Special people, special things

Fantasy
Look for the genre features noted below as you read this book. Use the features to help you understand the text.

On the Case
Officer Nick drives the two of us past fields and old houses as our speed car. There's nothing like putting your hand on the car window and feeling the wind against your tongue. It's the best part of driving anywhere.

Writing in Response to Reading
Analyze Point of View
Who tells the story? How does the point of view shape the story? What do you know because Justice tells the story? What don't you know because Justice tells the story? Write an organizer like the one below to help you plan your writing.

- Point of use PD tips from renowned education thought leaders
- Guided practice with assessment
- Writing activities and more

Open Understanding

Discuss the Rest of the Book (2-4 min.)

After finishing reading the book during independent reading time, think about the "New Family Emergency Plan" and the "What's the most interesting part of the book?" questions. Discuss the book with a partner or in a small group. Allow students to refer to the text for evidence that supports their comments on the text of the group following along.

Build Fluency (2 min.)

Teaching Focus: Adjust rate when reading new information or complex sentences.

Discuss how slowing down when reading new information or complex sentences can help students understand the text. Quickly read aloud the "scenarios" once. Then read it again more slowly. Ask students if the two readings allowed them to comprehend the scenarios better.

Student Writing Task

Have students write the scenarios in their journals. Have students write the scenarios in their journals. Have students write the scenarios in their journals.
