A Healthy Lunch

Julia and her mother go out to have lunch at a restaurant. The two of them sit down at a table.

Julia's mother orders two glasses of chicha, a purple corn drink. "Can I have dessert?" asks Julia.

"Yes, but first you have to eat something healthy," answers her mother.

“Something healthy?” asks Julia.

“Like what?”

“Like beans, vegetables, or salad,” answers her mother.

“Salad?” asks Julia. “I don’t know if I want to eat plants!”

“Why not?” her mother asks. “Plants are very important.”

Plants and Clothes and Food

“Look at the blouse you are wearing. Do you like it?” asks her mother.

Julia answers, “That blouse is my favorite!”

“That blouse is made of cotton. Do you know what cotton is?” asks her mother.

“Cotton?” asks Julia.

“Yes, cotton comes from a plant. Dresses, shirts, and pants are made from cotton. Cotton grows in South America.”

“Wow! I didn’t know that,” says Julia.

“Do you like the chicha that we are drinking?” asks her mother.

“Yes, I love it!” answers Julia.

“Chicha also comes from a plant. It is made from corn. There are many different colors of corn.”

“How interesting!” says Julia.
