FRIDAY

Snow Business

Dear Journal,

This is Snow White, future pop star of Fantasia!

Ha, it feels funny writing it out like that. My mom always said if you really want something to happen, you should say it out loud. Writing it down seems like the next best thing.

Sorry if my handwriting is a little messy. It's hard keeping your hand still when you're on a tour bus bumping down the highway.

The fans we meet are the best! Sometimes when they catch me after a show, they say how beautiful I am in person. Never fails to make me blush. (And it's REALLY easy to tell when I'm blushing.)

When I look in the mirror, I just see a normal girl. Raven hair. Ruby lips. Skin as white as snow. Well, I guess those things do make me stick out a little.

But I think the things I do matter more than the way I look. Kindness is the most important thing to me. I think if you have a warm and generous heart, that's what makes you truly beautiful.

For me, singing is beautiful. I've loved it since I was a little girl. I'd sing, walking through the woods. The next thing I'd know, there'd be a parade of bunnies and raccoons following me. SO CUTE.

I realized then how special singing is. When you sing, you're not just saying words in a pretty way. You're touching the hearts of everyone around you.

That's why I've always wanted to be onstage. To be up there in front of so many people and touching their hearts all at once? I feel like I'd burst from happiness. It's so great that I get to do that now.

Well, sort of.

Because I am on tour, and I do get to sing. But it's not me the fans are coming for. They're coming to see the star of the show: my big sister, Queenie.

Queenie the Meanie

I guess if I have to be a backup singer, being one for my sister is a good deal. After all, Queenie is the number one recording artist in Fantasia. When she stomps on to the stage and greets her “royal subjects,” the crowd goes wild.
